Marta Scythes is a medical illustrator, researcher and educator. She has illustrated for Harrowsmith Magazine and Harper Collins (New York). McClelland and Stewart published her pencil and ink illustrations in their national best-selling UP NORTH nature series as well as in The Canadian Encyclopedia. Her illustrations are featured in Canadian Geographic's Trans Canada Trail Guides and Simon & Schuster's best-selling, The Woman Who Changed Her Brain. She has produced two scientific animations on Type-1 Diabetes for The Hospital for Sick Children and is currently developing a stroke rehabilitation program using art-based therapy for sensory-motor-cognitive recovery, at Providence Care Hospital.

She teaches at Southampton School of Art and HSAD, Fleming College and when time permits, here at the KSOA.
